Description:

Though great differences exist between elderly residential systems in Eastern and Western societies, architects and designers all over the world should always pay attention to the mood and mental health of the elderly residents, and safety and comfortability of their living environment. The book covers the most typical aging societies such as Germany, The Netherlands, Spain, USA and Japan, where the latest notable projects are selected, including nursing homes, senior apartments, elderly communities and high-end elderly residences. Featuring different styles and innovations, and particularly an analysis of the demands and trends of elderly residential projects in China, the book offers a reference kit for all designers from different backgrounds.

Description:

This book will illustrate bar design in four chapters: theme design, layout design, the use of materials and lighting design. Each chapter starts with some must-know design points and then some experienced designers will share their experience with design cases. At last, some featured bar design cases within recent three years will be illustrated. The common features of our selected cases are promoted and highlighted: consideration of details, emphasis on experience and sustainability, understanding of owner's demands and appropriate expression of space.

Escape from the everyday of the small provincial town. Here, in different places, world publications, "self" and distant places, full of tension and mystery, and whatever else your imagination can create.

001 Bars with Specific Themes

The Category A listed vaults below the existing station concourse were previously forgotten, only used occasionally for retail storage. The principal challenge for the design was to draw the passing pedestrian traffic down into these intriguing subterranean spaces held together by a series of tunnels and passageways.

Key architectural interventions in the scheme include the creation of a new feature staircase as well as a series of structural openings and windows between the original vaults creating carefully framed views between the bar and restaurant and into the bustling stations.

Visitors to Alton are met by a soaring mural of over scaled native Scottish wildlife, muggles and howl moths, playing against a backdrop of huge fluted columns.

These late layered buffaloes produced by local artist Thomas Bewick define a route down into the previously derelict undercroft of the 17th century station.

On descending to the foot of an industrial, listed steel staircase shaded with under floor lights, a short window and pass reveals glimpses into the kitchen, the heart of the restaurant. Three cast glass pendant made of old railway electrical isolation define the division between the kitchen and front-of-house service.

Description:

With the diversification in China's decoration style of emerging living spaces, more and more mainland designers and homeowners are keen on the nature, casualness and quiet Zen connotation. Based on the local residential design culture of Taiwan, this book offers a stereoscopic interpretation of Taiwanese style designs. Oriented to the works of Taiwanese designers, it offers detailed explanation of the characteristic and forms of Taiwanese natural style, Taiwanese luxurious style and Taiwanese industrial style and reoccurs designers' distinctive concepts and presents the charm of Taiwanese style in all dimensions to give better understanding, analysis and interpretation for the readers from the perspective of design ideas, concepts and angles. We hope to bring the concept and charm of Taiwanese residential design to more readers for their references.

DECORATIVE MATERIALS

Praying much attention to the details of life, the design team took advantage to create good life with authority: each part is full of gratitude and resources for good life.

NATURAL LIGHTING AND COLORS

The light is integral and harmonious with the flow of lines, after penetrating the shelves and wooden frame, the light is brought into the room gracefully and more steps into the design and personality. A sense of quiet, tranquility, simplicity and Chinese Zen spirit is presented in the whole space. The designer uses natural colors and lines, difficult, showing nature and adding some intimacy. The traditional culture is abstracted into simple and abstract shapes. Little black square is repeated, making the white color brilliant and creating an interesting contrast.

Visual branding inspired by the art of Lithuania and Belarus

Karaway is a brand with a modern sensibility that takes inspiration from Eastern European traditions. The name Karaway is derived from the Slavic greeting Karavai, a custom of welcoming guests with a loaf of homemade bread. The Karaway letter 'K' and the brand pattern were inspired by the art of Lithuania and Belarus. To complete the visual brand, Chelton Bennett was commissioned by photographer in the Karaway bakery, perfectly capturing the baking process and the breads.

For collaboration with architect 31144 to develop the Karaway shop, where the use of natural materials continues to inspire. From brown paper bags to linen staff aprons and hand-drawn price tags. The open-plan shop counter, the feel of a market, using wood on food crates and wicker baskets to display goods.

Description:

Reading Romantic Dining Time is a warm and surprising journey of design! Here, you will find the colourful restaurant from the city of Beethoven, the dramatic burger restaurant, the fresh and aesthetic restaurant in Tokyo, the vintage British bistro with geometric shapes and classic letterforms&hellip; One of the design works is even inspired by the chef's travel experience around the world! In these places, people gather together to have a warm conversation or spend a cosy time all alone. Bored teenagers, tired office workers, housewives on their way of shopping or crazy men like the one in Van Gogh's painting will all enjoy their time in these places. Here, food is no longer the priority, the wonderful design offers them endless happiness. That is the charm of design. This book is rooted in the thorough exchange and discussion between the editor and cutting-edge designers from all over the world on the branding and space design of small- and medium-size restaurants. On this basis, it further digs into every case's features and highlights, expressing the charming design soul of each designer. The designers look for the places where design is necessary with their modest yet sharp sights, and then place each design detail on its accurate location. This book is divided into several categories: Mexican Restaurant, Spanish Restaurant, French Restaurant, Italian Restaurant, British Restaurant, Japanese Restaurant, Mediterranean Restaurant, Seafood Restaurant, Bistro, Islamic Restaurant, Vegetarian Restaurant, Pizza House, Fast-food Restaurant, Barbecue Restaurant and other Creative Restaurants. The selected 86 design cases illustrate systematically how the graphic and space design of restaurant works and reveal the infinite potentials of restaurant design.

Description:

Sponge city is a concept originated from the use of 'sponge' to describe the absorbing function of cities. Population researchers in Australia were the first to use the sponge metaphor in expressing the adsorption of pollution from cities. In recent years, the expression is more often used to describe the regulation and storage capacity of cities or field. The theory of 'sponge city' has been applied in several design and planning practices and this book will cover the critical technologies of sponge city, illustrated with case studies. Theoretical issues and practical cases are closely integrated in this book, taking landscape as a new form of infrastructure and introducing a greener, wiser way of life.
